LOCAL COLLEGE WILL BROADCAST PUBLIC ADDRESS

Gettysburg College Station Volunteers Use of Radio Equipment and Expert.

All arrangements have been completed for the broadcasting of the Armistice Day address to be delivered here at four o'clock in the afternoon of November 11th, in conjunction with the peace time patriotic demonstration under the auspices of the local American Legion Post.

Arrangements were made with the Gettysburg College Radio Broadcasting station for the use of the apparatus at the school, which will be removed to the speakers stand on Center Square for the afternoon exercises of the Legion's Armistice Day celebration.

It was at first announced that the broadcasting would be in charge of the Third Corps recruiting station, whose apparatus was made available to the Legion some time ago. This was changed, however, when the officials in charge of the College's broadcasting station volunteered the use of their equipment together with a radio man to assist in operating and broadcasting.

This is the second time that a public address has ever been broadcast out of Gettysburg and the Legion is fortunate in securing the radio equipment together with a well trained radio expert to assist in broadcasting over the country the address which will be delivered here.

The general committee of the Armistice Day celebration has not definitely settled upon the speaker for the day. Senator Matthew M. Neely, of West Virginia, was first selected, but due to a change in plans this information was later revoked.

Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania and Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi are now being considered and final announcement will be made within the next few days.

Commissioners To Distribute Ballots

At their regular weekly meeting, Tuesday, the Adams county commissioners decided to personally distribute the ballots among the judges of the elections, prior to the general election next Tuesday. In the spring primary, the judges were requested to come to the office of the commissioners for the ballots and other election supplies.

Notices went out today to every voting judge to be at home on Friday, October 31, to receive the ballots and election supplies, or to have someone at home to receive them so that the commissioners will not have to make a second trip.

The commissioners feel that, taking the ballots and election supplies to the judges, they are saving the voting officials considerable time, which would be lost by a trip to their office here.

FRIENDLY SPIRIT PLEA OF GUIDES

Fifty members of the Gettysburg Battlefield Guides Association held their annual banquet at the Hoffman Hotel, Tuesday evening, with Rufus Bushman, president of the organization, in the toastmaster's chair.

A plea for cooperation among the guides, in place of "cut-throat" competition, was made by William C. Storrick, of the National Park staff. He praised the guide's organization and expressed the hope that it would have a long and mutually profitable existence.

A chicken dinner was served, during which the Novelty Serenaders furnished music.

Hold Two Men For November Grand Jury

William Tawney and Fred Kriemling, both of Gettysburg and both married, were committed to jail this morning in default of $500 bail each for grand jury action after a preliminary hearing of serious charges preferred by John Bowers, North Stratton street. FIREMEN EXPECT TO ENTER PARADE

County Association to Meet at Fire Engine House This Evening to Decide Participation.

A call has been issued to all fire companies in the county, which are members of the Adams County Firemen's Association, to send representatives to Gettysburg this evening, to decide whether or not the county organization, as such, shall participate in the Armistice Day parade, November 11.

The meeting, which will be held at the fire engine house, at 7:30 o'clock, will be presided over by James B. Aumen, president of the county association.

Mr. Aumen, who is also chief of the Gettysburg company, this morning said he was anxious that the county organization participate in the parade in a body and that every effort would be put forth to reach that end.

Failing in that, however, he said the Gettysburg and probably a number of the other companies in the county association will participate in the Armistice Day parade, which is to be one of the big features of that celebration being arranged by the Albert J. Lentz post, American Legion.

He said further that the Gettysburg company and probably a number of the other companies in the county organization would place floats in the Armistice Day parade. The float section, as plans are taking shape, will be the biggest ever seen in a parade here, a number of organizations and private individuals having signified their intention of having representation in this section of the parade.

WOMAN'S SLAYER STILL AT LARGE

Husband of New Jersey Woman, Found in Mine, Held Without Bail, as Witness.

(By Associated Press.)

Oxford, N. J., Oct. 29.—State Troopers are continuing their efforts today to establish the murderer of Mrs. Grace Thomas, of Rocky Run, whose nude body was found in an abandoned iron mine hole on the outskirts of this city yesterday. The dead woman's husband, Frank Thomas, is held without bail as a material witness.

Police had discovered a bullet hole in a window of the Thomas home. The body of Mrs. Thomas had lain in a chicken coop at the rear of the Thomas home before it was removed here, detectives said today, declaring they had found large blood stains and other marks that indicated this.

It was learned today that Mrs. Thomas frequently left home for intervals, one of these occasions being last July, when she was away two weeks. It also was reported that she attended parties with Edward Beam, a boarder at the Thomas home, who was ordered out of the house by Mr. Thomas a few weeks ago.

Although he would not give the name of the purchaser, Attorney Duncan admitted that he was only acting as agent in the purchase of the machine, which appeared to be in good running order, and was equipped with four brand new tires.

The proceeds from the sale of the machine will be turned over to the county treasurer.

HOLD YOUTHS FOR STEALING AUTO

Iron Springs Young Men Remanded to County Jail in Default of Heavy Bail Last Night.

Sheldon Richardson, 18, and Andy Reese, 23, both of Iron Springs, were committed to the Adams county jail last night by Squire J. U. Applier on a charge of stealing a motor vehicle. The young men were remanded to the county jail, in default of bond, to await trial at the January term of court.

Richardson was held on three counts. Larceny of a motor vehicle, i.e. a truck, is the first charge and his bail on this count was fixed at $2,000. His second charge is operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent and bail on this count was placed at $1,000. The third charge lodged against Richardson is operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating beverages. The bail in this charge was fixed at $1,000, making a total bond of $4,000. Richardson was unable to furnish the required amount and was remanded to the county jail.

Reese is charged with being an accessory to the above counts lodged against Richardson, but is held only on a charge of larceny of the truck. His bail in this count was fixed at $1,000 and in default of bail he also was remanded to the county jail.

Private Alfred Hughes of the local sub-station of state police made information against the two youths and appeared in Squire Applier's court last evening. The men were brought before the local squire at seven o'clock.

In Court Before Richardson, who, until his arrest, was employed by Roy E. Zinn, Hanover street, former county treasurer, at his fruit farm, west of Fairfield, was acquitted in court here several months ago of a charge of setting fire to woodland in the South Mountains.

He and Reese, while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, it is charged, took Mr. Zinn's truck and wrecked it Friday night. The pair were arrested over the week-end by Private Hughes and Constable Aughaugh.

Stock Exchange Is Unsettled By Rail Information

(By Associated Press.) New York, Oct. 29.—Disappointment over the quarterly earnings of the U. S. Steel corporation and announcement that negotiation for the lease of the Norfolk & Western railroad by the Pennsylvania railroad had been abandoned invited professional selling which unsettled the stock market at today's opening. The market later was characterized by alternate periods of heaviness and strength. The rebound which followed the opening sinking spell was followed by another dip which in turn gave way to a rally on the declaration of an increase in dividends on the common stock of the American Tobacco company which jumped about four points. Call money opened at two and one half per cent.

'GOING SOME' TO BE GIVEN TONIGHT

Owl and Nightingale Dramatic Club to Present Initial 1924 Performance This Evening.

Rehearsals are completed and everything is in readiness for the presentation of the Owl and Nightingale Dramatic Club's play "Going Some," the famous four act farce comedy by Rex Beach, to be rendered this evening at the Lincoln Way Theatre at 8 o'clock.

Seven local players are included in the cast and all of these are well known to Gettysburg audiences before whom they have often appeared in titular roles in other local plays.

Coaches Walter D. Reynolds and Fred P. Haehnle and twenty men of the High School football team will be entertained by the Dramatic Club as guests at the play.

A glance at the chart reveals the fact that there are many good seats still available. Seats are on sale at Keet's Drug Store, on Chambersburg street, until 7 o'clock, at which time the chart will be taken to the theatre, it was announced by the business managers.

Dr. Richard A. Arms, director of the Owl and Nightingale Club, under whose personal direction "Going Some" is to be rendered, stated this morning:

"This presentation in the Lincoln Way Theatre is rendered as a courtesy to Gettysburg people and is the major performance of the play. We have not received the support we expected so far, but we anticipate a large sale of tickets at the theatre this evening."

The five acre plot was purchased by Mr. Schelling from George Plontz and the other tract from Mrs. Mary K. Bayly, of Washington, D. C. They were bought as an investment, Mr. Schelling says, although he is planning to commence the erection of a large bungalow on the former Bayly property to use as a residence within the near future. KING MOMUS TO BE FETED ON FRIDAY

Gettysburg Will Hold Its Customary Mummies' Parade on Halloween Night.

Witches, goblins, ghosts and sprites, young and old, shy or bold, lean or fat, this way or that: harken ye now to the call which hath been issued for you to make your annual appearance in Gettysburg on the eve of All Saints' Day, more often known as Halloween.

Gettysburg is to have its annual Mummies' Parade on Friday evening, October 31, the night when pumpkin lanterns, window tick-tackers and the spirit of mischief abounds in the hands and minds of every young American and oftentimes among his young American sisters.

Sons and daughters of King Momus here are expected to don fantastic costumes and join the parade which will form at the Meade school building at 7 o'clock. The Citizens Band has been secured to furnish music.

Floats and gaily or grotesquely decorated cars are expected to be in line, along with hundreds of young and old, all eager to do homage to the king, who is supposed to be feted on All Saints Day. Everyone will be in costume, some gorgeous in their trimmings, other ridiculous or comic.

With the announcing of the parade, Burgess William E. Olmger issued his annual warning to persons damaging property within the borough limits. The practice of removing steps and gates will be prosecuted to the limit and no leniency will be shown to perpetrators of such acts, because they are under age.

The line of march for the fantastic parade has not been definitely decided, but it is almost sure to cover most of the leading streets. Allen B. Plank will be the marshal.

DEMOCRATS HOLD ROAST AND RALLY FOR LARGE CROWD

Rowland B. Mahany, of Washington, D. C., Is Principal Speaker.

Democracy had its fling in the present general election campaign, Tuesday, when an ox roast was followed by a rousing and spirited meeting at the court house, in the evening.

A 1,400-pound ox, done to a succulent brown, was served to more than 1,000 persons at the roast, which was held in a lot on Buford avenue. Serving portions of the roasted meat began early Tuesday afternoon and when the time for the meeting at the court house rolled around only a pile of bones and scraps remained to tell how every edible portion of the browned carcass was eaten.

The crowd at the ox roast was large, at some times as many as several hundred persons being gathered around the carvers to secure their portions.

Court House Jammed

While the crowd at the ox roast was large, there was plenty of room for expansion, which was the one thing lacking at the political mass meeting which followed at the court house. The dark and worn court room has seen large crowds, but never was there a gathering to equal that of Tuesday night. Even the window seats were jammed, and many persons, unable to secure so much as standing room, were turned away.

Charles S. Duncan, attorney, former postmaster and one of the leaders of the Democratic party in Adams county, was chairman of the meeting, of which women formed a fair-sized percentage.

Wilson's Secretary Speaks

Andrew Brodbeck, of Hanover, former congressman from the Adams-York district; S. F. Glatfelter, of York, present incumbent in congress from the district, and candidate for re-election; Miss Lilly Dougherty, of Gettysburg, prominent in Democratic women's activity in the county for a number of years, and Rowland B. Mahany, of Washington, D. C., private secretary to W. B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor in the Wilson cabinet, were the speakers.

Why the Democratic ticket in nation, state and county should be elected formed the principal themes of the speakers, although charges against the present national administration were made at times and never failed to bring response from the enthusiastic audience.

SECURE JUDGE AS DEBATE CHAIRMAN

President Judge D. P. McPherson Agrees To Act As Arbitrator In Triangular Debate.

President Judge D. P. McPherson, of the Adams county courts, has been secured as chairman of the novel triangular political debate to be held at Brua Chapel, Thursday evening, at 7:30 o'clock, under the auspices of the Gettysburg College Debating Council.

Three college students, each claiming one of the three major political candidates as his preference for president, will defend their candidates and the principles for which each of the three leading parties stands.

Each speaker will be allowed twenty minutes in which to present his arguments, after which the meeting will be thrown open to persons in the audience to express themselves for or against any one of the presidential candidates or the principles to which each party holds.

Members of the debating council have extended an invitation to all political clubs and organizations in Adams county to attend the meeting, which is being held solely to arouse interest in the general election on November 4.

Incivility is the extreme of pride. It is built on the contempt of mankind.

Mankind is ever the same, and nothing is lost out of nature, though everything is altered.

Modesty is to the other virtues in a man, what shade in a picture is to the other parts of the thing represented. It makes all the other beauties conspicuous, which would otherwise be but a wild heap of colors.

To live long is almost everyone's wish, but to live well is the ambition of a few.

JUST FOLKS

A CITY STREET

A city street
Where hurrying feet
Move ever up and down;
Where day by day
Men seek the way
To fortune and renown.

And some are bound
For higher ground,
And some for bleak despair;
And some for fame,
And some for shame,
And some an hour of prayer.

And some are strong
That move along,
And some are pale and weak;
And some are gaunt
With care and want,
And some are snug and sleek.

CIRCUS STARS REMEMBER VET

Reading Circus Performers, Home Over Winter Months, Recall Most Versatile Artist.

Reading, Pa., Oct. 29.—Reading's crop of acrobats and gymnasts, who make up many of the leading acts in the circuses and on the vaudeville circuits of the country, owes much to the memory of a man whose death, many years ago, still remains something of a mystery.

The man was Washington Donaldson, who lived in Reading several years during the period, about a half-century ago, when most of the small boys and girls of the town were doing stunts on barnyard trapezes in hopes of becoming stars of the circus tops. Some of them succeeded and many of their children have since become famous.

Versatile Artist

Donaldson is said to have been the most versatile artist of his day. He was an acrobat and gymnast, a sleight-of-hand performer, a tight rope walker and a knife thrower. Often he entertained his fellow citizens by walking wires stretched from the highest buildings, usually winding up with performances on a trapeze hung from the wire far above the street. It was, however, as an aeronaut in a day when flying machines had hardly been thought of that he attained his greatest fame. He began by making balloon ascensions, hanging from a trapeze attached to the bottom of the bag. On one occasion he went up in a balloon constructed of paper.

His fame became nation wide and he finally was engaged by a New York paper early in the 70's to construct a balloon in which to cross the Atlantic. The paper raised $100,000, and Donaldson supervised the building of the airship. It was while he was engaged in this work that he made an ascension in Chicago in company with a newspaper reporter named Grimwood. What happened has never been determined. The two never were seen alive again but later the bleached bones of two men, found on the shore of Lake Michigan, told of their death.

During his residence in Reading, Donaldson was a conspicuous figure whenever he appeared in public. He was followed by admiring crowds of boys and young men most of whom sought to emulate him in his reckless feats. Although many failed, some succeeded in one line or another, mostly as acrobats, and it was this success that led largely to the growth of the business of producing circus performers in this city.

FOOTBALL RALLY LANDS STUDENTS IN TOIL OF LAW

A rousing Dickinson College football rally, in anticipation of the game with Gettysburg on the Island in Harrisburg Saturday, last night landed two first year students of the Dickinson School of Law in the Carlisle lockup and caused a near-riot between firemen and students on the Square.

In mid-evening the football boosters decided to parade the Carlisle streets. While the paraders were in the western end of Carlisle a fire alarm from that end of town sounded. Firemen responding found it to be a false alarm.

The students were immediately blamed and the irate firemen raced to the Carlisle police headquarters and demanded "satisfaction." The police force took to the trail, and in a little while the two juniors of the law school were in the lock-up.

Even that did not satisfy the firemen and they gathered about the municipal building. Students, also angry, also gathered, and hot words passed between the two groups. Police broke up several embryo fist-fights, and the commotion brought most of the townspeople to the Square to watch "the fun."

A CANOE VOYAGE

The other day there landed at the port of New York one of the most remarkable vessels that ever came from a foreign country. It was a fifteen-foot canoe, weighing 55 pounds, with a 32-inch beam and drawing four inches of water. The captain and crew consisted of George H. G. Smyth, of Toronto, Canada. He had paddled this tiny craft, 1,350 miles down the Atlantic coast, from Cape Breton, N. S., taking the outside passage and risking the open sea.

The voyage required 41 days. That seems like slow travel, in this age of fast steamers and express yachts, but by any normal standard is not bad. It means 32 miles a day, which is farther than most men would care to walk.

The feat inevitably recalls the exploratory tours of the old French voyageurs. It proves again that the canoe, with all its fragility, is a wonderfully dependable craft for the person that masters it, and just as good for transportation as for sport.

Canoeing is still the normal mode of locomotion in northern Canada. In more settled regions, especially in this country, it is in danger of being killed off by the outboard motor, the substitute of the lazy or hurried person for paddling or rowing. From the standpoint of sport, at least, that is a great pity.

There is no finer exercise than paddling a canoe, and no sport which, amid suitable surroundings, brings more pleasure. It is particularly desirable for a generation that tends to spend more and more of its time, whether on land or water, sitting behind steering wheels.

He pointed up the hillside to the nearest olive tree, a hundred paces distant.

"Yonder," he said, "is a man's mark. Put me a shaft through the long branch of that first olive tree."

Asad and his officers voiced approval.

"A man's mark, indeed," said the Basha, "so that he be a marksman."

But Marzak shrugged his shoulders with make-believe contempt.

"I knew he would refuse the mark I set," said he. "As for the olive branch, it is so large a butt that a child could not miss it at this distance."

"If a child could not, then thou shouldst not," said Sak-el-Bahr, who had so placed himself that his body was now between Marzak and the palmetto bala.

"Let us see thee hit it, O Marzak."

And as he spoke he raised his crossbow and scarcely seeming to take aim he loosed his shaft. It flashed away to be checked, quivering, in the branch he had indicated.

A chorus of applause and admiration greeted the shot, and drew the attention of all the crew to what was toward.

Marzak tightened his lips, realizing how completely he had been outwitted. Willy-nilly he must now shoot at that mark. The choice had been taken out of his hands by Sak-el-Bahr. He never doubted that he must cover himself with ridicule in the performance, and that there he would be constrained to abandon this pretended match.

"By the Koran," said Biskaine, "thou'lt need all thy skill to equal such a shot, Marzak."

"'Twas not the mark I chose," replied Marzak, sullenly.

"Thou wert the challenger, O Marzak," his father reminded him. "Therefore the choice of mark was his. He chose a man's mark and by the beard of Mohammed he showed us a man's shot."

Marzak would have flung the bow from him in that moment, abandoning the method he had chosen to investigate the contents of that suspicious palmetto bala; but he realized that such a course must now cover him with scorn.

Slowly he leveled his bow at that distant mark.

"Have a care of the sentinel on the hilltop," Sak-el-Bahr admonished him, provoking a titter.

Angrily the youth drew his bow. The cord hummed, and the shaft sped to bury itself in the hill's flank a dozen yards from the mark.

Since he was the son of the Basha none dared to laugh outright save his father and Sak-el-Bahr. But there was no suppressing a titter to express the mockery to which the proven braggart must ever be exposed.

Asad looked at him, smiling almost sadly.

"See now," he said, "what comes of boasting thyself against Sak-el-Bahr."

"My will was crossed in the matter of a mark," was the bitter answer. "You angered me and made my aim untrue."

Sak-el-Bahr strode away to the starboard bulwarks, deeming the matter at an end. Marzak observed him.

"Yet at that small mark," he said, "I challenge him again." As he spoke he fitted a second shaft to his bow.

"Behold!" he cried, and took aim. But swift as thought, Sak-el-Bahr—heedless now of all consequences—leveled at Marzak the bow which he still held.

"Hold!" he roared. "Loose thy shaft at that bala, and I loose this at thy throat. I never miss!" he added grimly.

There was a startled movement in the ranks of those who stood behind Marzak. In speechless amazement they stared at Sak-el-Bahr as he stood there, white-faced, his eyes aflash, his bow drawn taut and ready to launch that death-laden quarrel as he threatened.

Slowly then, smiling with unutterable malice, Marzak lowered his bow. He was satisfied. His true aim was reached. He had drawn his enemy into self-betrayal.

Asad's was the voice that shattered that hush of consternation. "Kellamullah!" he bellowed. "What is this? Art thou mad, too, O Sak-el-Bahr?"

"Aye, mad indeed," said Marzak; "mad with fear."

And he stepped quickly aside so that the body of Biskaine should shield him from any sudden consequences of his next words.

"Ask him what he keeps in that pannier, O my father."

"Aye, what, in Allah's name?" demanded the Basha, advancing toward his captain.

Sak-el-Bahr lowered his bow, master of himself again. His composure was beyond all belief.

"I carry in it goods of price, which I'll not see riddled to please a pert boy," he said.

"Goods of price," echoed Asad, with a snort. "They'll need to be of price indeed that are valued above the life of my son. Let us see these goods of price." And to the men upon the waist-deck he shouted:

"Open me that pannier."

Sak-el-Bahr sprang forward, and laid a hand upon the Basha's arm. "Stay, my lord!" he entreated almost fiercely. "Consider that this pannier is my own. That its contents are my property; that none has a right to—"

"Wouldst babble of rights to me, who am thy lord?" blazed the Basha, now in a towering passion. "Open me that pannier, I say."

They were quick to his bidding. The ropes were slashed away, and the front of the pannier fell open on its palmetto hinges. There was a half-repressed chorus of amazement from the men. Sak-el-Bahr stood frozen in horror of what must follow.

"What is it? What have you found?" demanded Asad.

In silence the men swung the bale about, and disclosed to the eyes of those upon the poop-deck the face and form of Rosamund Godolphin. Then Sak-el-Bahr, rousing himself from his trance of horror, reckless of all but her, flung down the gangway to assist her from the pannier, and, thrusting aside those who stood about her, took his stand at her side.

CHAPTER XXV

THE DUPE

For a little while Asad stood at gaze, speechless in his incredulity. Then to revive the anger that for a moment had been whelmed in astonishment came the reflection that he had been duped by Sak-el-Bahr, duped by the man he trusted most. He had snarled at Fenzileh and scorned Marzak when they had jointly warned him against his lieutenant; if at times he had been in danger of heeding them, yet sooner or later he had concluded that they but spoke to vent their malice. And yet it was proven now that they had been right in their estimate of this traitor, whilst he himself had been a poor, blind dupe, needing Marzak's wit to tear the bandage from his eyes.

Slowly he went down the gangway, followed by Marzak, Biskaine and the others. At the point where it joined the waist-deck he paused, and his dark old eyes smoldered under his beetling brows.

"So," he snarled. "These are thy goods of price. Thou lying dog, what was thine aim in this?"

Defiantly Sak-el-Bahr answered him: "She is my wife. It is my right to take her with me where I go."

He turned to her, and bade her veil her face, and she immediately obeyed him with fingers that shook a little in her agitation.

"None questions thy right to that," said Asad. "But, being resolved to take her with thee, why not take her openly? Why was she not housed in the poop-house, as becomes the wife of Sak-el-Bahr? Why smuggle her aboard in a pannier, and keep her there in secret?"

"And why?" added Marzak, "didst thou lie to me when I questioned thee upon her whereabouts?—telling me she was left behind in thy house in Algiers?"

"All this I did," replied Sak-el-Bahr, with a lofty, almost disdainful, dignity, "because I feared lest I should be prevented from bearing her away with me," and his bold glance beating full upon Asad drew a wave of color into the gaunt old cheeks.

"What could have caused that fear?" he asked. "Shall I tell thee? Because no man sailing upon such a voyage as this would have desired the company of his new-wedded wife. Because no man would take a wife with him upon a raid in which there is peril of life and peril of capture."

"Allah has watched over me, his servant, in the past," said Sak-el-Bahr, "and I put my trust in Him."

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that application has been made to The Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, under the provisions of the Public Service Company Law, by E. W. ECZEMA

You will be compelled to admit that the results of S.S.S. are really amazing!

MANY people imagine that eczema or better needs only some external application on the skin in order to get relief. This is because the attention of the sufferer is so violently directed to the intense burning and itching which accompanies this disease. Try as they may—permanent relief will never be theirs until the disease laden blood is thoroughly cleansed.

We know there is one thing that stops eczema and that is more red-blood-cells! S.S.S. builds them by the million! You can increase your red-blood-cells to the point where it is practically impossible for eczema to exist. We know that as blood-cells increase in number, blood impurities vanish! We also know that night follows day. Both are facts! But have you, eczema sufferers, ever actually taken advantage of this wonderful fact? Thousands just like you have never thought about it. Skin eruptions, eczema, with all its fiery, skin digging torture, and its soul-tearing, unrelenting itching, pimples, blackheads and boils, they all pack up and go, when the tide of blood-cells begins to roll in! Blood-cells are the fighting giants of Nature! S.S.S. builds them by the million! It has been doing it since 1826.

S.S.S. is one of the greatest blood-cell builders, blood-cleansers and body strengtheners known to us mortals! When you put these facts together, then to continue to have eczema and skin eruptions looks more like a sin than a disease. S.S.S. contains only vegetable medicinal ingredients. Because S.S.S. does build red-blood-cells, it routs eczema, clears the skin, builds firm flesh, fills out hollow cheeks, and gives you that more up and going appearance.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

A TALK WITH A GETTYSBURG MAN

Mr. Newman Tells Something of Interest to Gettysburg Folks

There's nothing more convincing than the statement of someone you know and have confidence in. That's why this talk with Mr. Newman, of Franklin street, should be mighty helpful here in Gettysburg. Edward Newman, 26 Franklin St., Gettysburg, says: "My kidneys were in poor shape. For a long time my back was so weak I could hardly lift anything and when I bent over, knife-like pains shot across my kidneys. Mornings I felt sore in my joints and limbs and was all tired out. My kidneys acted too freely and I was bothered during the night. Doan's Pills did away with the backache and put my kidneys in the best of shape." Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mr. Newman had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mrs., Buffalo, N. Y.—adv.

When You Buy Your Fall "Personality"

Keeping Prices Down By Selling More.

That's the big idea in this store. We want to sell more goods so that each article will have to bear less of the cost of such items, as rent, salaries, heat, light, taxes and insurance.

But we're not so anxious to sell more goods that we'll sell poor goods. That's why we stick to such things as Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothes, Dobbs hats, Florsheim shoes, Cheney ties, Manhattan shirts, Interwoven hose, etc. They are cheaper in the long run.

It's "personality" your getting, you know, when you buy a suit of clothes.

For several months that suit is to be the visible "you"; it should be worthy of you.

Our Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothes have a quality—a character—that you'll like.

Fine woolens, honest sewing, aristocratic style. See them in the window tonight.

REALTY MART SLACKERS

Reading, Pa.—A falling off in the demand for real estate in Reading this year as compared with 1923 is shown in the number of transfers for the first nine months of 1924. This year's total is 2,994, a loss of 723, compared with the corresponding period last year, the aggregate for which was 3,717.

The considerations for the first nine months of 1924 amount to $14,970,000, a decrease of $1,756,500 compared with the same period in 1923.

One precedent creates another. They soon accumulate and become law.

SELL 16 SEIZED CARS

Uniontown, Pa.—Sixteen automobiles, seized while transporting liquor, are to be sold by the county, according to District Attorney E. D. Brown. The sales were held up temporarily while the question of licenses granted on such machines was being decided by the State Highway Department. Upon receipt of official notice that state automobile licenses would be granted immediately to purchasers of confiscated machines, the district attorney prepared to dispose of the cars.

Where there is no hope there can be no endeavor.
